Rice Lake Worth Visit From Eager Fisherman

By B. A. CLARLIN
We have up to now been considering the nearer by trout streams open to the seasons for other fish not being open and also due to the fact that weather conditions farther north have been unfavorable. The season for most of the game fishes other than black bass will open June 1. This together with the desire of the outdoors people to make longer trips will warrant our describing at this time a locality with which we are quite familiar, and one which is well worth a visit from any fisherman.

We refer to Rice Lake and surroundings in Barron Co. Within 20 miles of this lake will be found some of the finest fishing in the state. The Flambeau with its big muskies hardly needs comment. Then there is the Yellow River, Hemlock Creek and Red Cedar. These streams are all prolific in fish of different species. Chetek Lake is wonderful water for Small Mouth bass. Pokegama, Hauken and Birch lakes offer some excellent Northern Pike and Walleye fishing.

Speaking of Rice Lake, on the shore of which lies the city of the same name we had occasion not long ago to fish it, and with very satisfactory results. There is a resort on the lake some four miles from the city which will accommodate quite a number of guests in the main building and the dozen cottages. Preference however to stay in the city and fish out from there we rented a boat with an Evinrude motor which, in a short time took us to the lily pads of the western end of the lake. As we approached we noticed, some distance ahead a man in a boat busy placing a fish which appeared to be giving him considerable trouble. We were interested to learn the nature of his prey and therefore ran close enough to witness operations plainly. In a short time the fish was subdued and taken in over the side of the boat. It proved to be a Wall eye, and would weigh at least five pounds.

We lost no time in getting our 'plugs' into action. The first strike we had was from a pickerel. He measured nearly three feet in length but would not weigh over three or four pounds. Not desiring this kind of fish we moved closer to the weed bed. Then things began to happen. Inside of an hour we landed several nice bass, the largest of which weighed about four pounds, and six Wall eyes, none of which would tip the scales under two pounds.

The following morning we landed several more fine specimens, keeping nothing but the largest of them. A few days later we drove over to Lake Chetek where we had some fine sport with the Small Mouths. This region is easy of access and productive of excellent results, the catch running from a striped lake perch to a Muskellunge according to where you prefer to fish.

From noon to sunset it should fly from the top.
In half-masting the flag, run it to the top of the mast first.
Also run a half-mast flag to the top before hauling it down.
When the flag is flown horizontally, the starry field should be at the upper left. When flown vertically, the field should be at the upper right.
The pledge of allegiance is taken standing, right hand over the heart. SECURITY IN BANKS

L. Albert Karel, president of the Wisconsin Bankers association, in an address at Fond du Lac, made an effective reply to Governor Blaine's disapproval of the organization of vigilantes by the bankers association. Mr. Karel pointed to the fact that Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, and Minnesota have the vigilante system and that it has worked out admirably in those states. In Illinois it has avoided the necessity of resorting to the state constabulary or mounted police. The thousands of vigilantes in the states referred to have been the means of saving country banks from heavy losses, of forcing bandits to give these states a wider berth and of reducing burglary and hold-up insurance.

Mr. Blaine's solicitude about the majesty and authority of sheriffs is a little far-fetched. As a matter of fact, there is not a county where the sheriff and his deputies alone offer any real protection against safe-crackers and bank burglars. Possibly the governor may reason that banks in Wisconsin are making too much money and it will serve them right to be burglarized from time to time and have their assets reduced. What the state cannot take away in taxation may be held by the political dictators of our state to be polite meat for the poor hold-up man.

The proposal to organize vigilantes in Wisconsin resolves itself down to the question of whether we want to give the banks the security they have a right to demand. They are not receiving it now. Of course, the bankers are a bad lot, preying upon others according to the politicians, and it may be all right, as we have said, to let them be preyed upon in return. Presumably any successful business in Wisconsin is making a dishonest profit and the theory of the government seems to be to prevent if possible the making of any profit. In addition, there is the danger that vigilantes would build up a militarism and take over the government of the commonwealth.

Wisconsin must be different than the other states, regardless of costs and consequences. Any other than super-Progressive politicians would approve the move of the Wisconsin Bankers association to protect the country banks. Their business is to discredit business of any kind, and to set one class against another.

WOMAN'S SPHERE SHIFTS

Women are not fixed in industry, although they have become fixtures in industry. As scientific research, applied to industrial processes and commercial systems, has progressed, so the employment opportunities for women have been advanced, shifted or retarded. But the net result has been a steady expansion of the occupational area open to women.

It is little more than half a century since the invention of the telephone, which has created employment for so many thousands of women; and less than a decade since radio revolutionized communication and provided further employment for many women. Neither of these, however, can approximate the influence on the employment of women made by the invention of the typewriter.

But even while one writes of the employment opened to women through mechanical devices, other mechanical devices are being perfected to take it away, the automatic telephone switching devices being the most outstanding development. However, the increase in opportunities for employment, whatever the shift in specific occupations, may be depended upon to maintain a consistent high average, for new avenues open up every day to absorb the surplus workers thrown on the labor market by the further invention of automatic machinery.

THE OLD MASTER

You read that Walter Johnson, now pitching his twentieth year in the big leagues, won his 400th ball game the other day. You read, too, that the victory was his sixth out of seven starts this year.

How long, you wonder, will the Old Master go on. They said he was through years ago, but his twenty-three wins in 1924 were the biggest factor in Washington's capture of the pennant that year. They said he was through after losing his first two world series starts that fall. Yet in the final game with the Giants he went in as a relief pitcher and a forlorn hope and won imperishable glory by setting McGraw's men on their heads.

They said he was through after the Pirates has massacred him in the deciding game of the world series last fall. Yet here he is, in his 39th year, still the pitching ace of the Washington team, still the biggest hero of American boyhood.

And further than that, you have it on the word of every ball player who has played with or against him, every umpire who has known him, that Walter Johnson is supremely a gentleman. Billy Evans, the famous umpire, says he has called lots of bad balls on Walter without the big fellow so much as murmuring.

Day in and day out he gives his best. And if he wins he wins like a gentleman, and if he loses he loses with a smile, without complaint. They make few like Walter Johnson. May the day come when we read that he has won his 500th big league game.

THE EGYPTIAN ELECTION

Perhaps the most significant feature of the recent Egyptian election, the first on a basis of manhood suffrage, was the absence of much disturbance. At only one place was there any disturbance. The second feature of note was that Zaghlul, the enigma of Egyptian affairs, buried the entire government party under a landslide of votes.

To a student of affairs in the Near east the significance of this news is at once apparent. Just what effect will the result of this election have on the interest of Great Britain in Egypt? That is the immediate question to be answered. Up to the present time, the victor does not seem to be planning a collision with the British, since he has slated Adly Pasha, a Liberal constitutional leader, instead of a Nationalist like himself, for the premiership. This would indicate that the new master of Egyptian destinies is willing to "play ball" with the British, at least to begin with, although to what extent he will cooperate cannot be foreseen.

TODAY'S POEM

By HAL COCHRAN

Every little youngster knows the famous A. B. C. that the teacher harps on daily in the school. I mean the kind that start with A and end with Z. You have then in your lessons as a rule. But, do you know the modern brand; the brand that means so much? Just study them and think them over twice. They're worthy of your thought if you can get the proper touch and realize they're based on good advice.

The A stands for Always do as Mom and Daddy say and Ask a question 'cept when you're in doubt. They'll always gladly tell you why they want each thing its way and it never gets you anywhere to pout.

The B means Be considerate of grown-ups that you know. Beware of being selfish or unkind. Be mindful of the fact that you are young until you grow, and you will be much happier, you'll find.

The C means Cause your mother and your father to be glad. Consider them with care, if you please. Then also catch the meaning of the lesson you have had, that's taken from the modern A. B. C's.

There is a movement to revive the old songs under their original names instead of under new names.

In New York, a pianist drowned in her bath tub, this being the first casualty reported in the spring rush.

Jack Pickford, movie actor, claims he recently saw his wife, Marilyn Miller, and had dinner with her.

And it's spring in Kansas City, where a woman of 99 has had a permanent wave put in her hair.

In Japan they published a novel in 106 volumes, but many of our novels seem much longer.

Washington wants to reduce the size of our money. Alas, somebody has reduced the amount.

A Peoria (Ill.) girl has had three husbands in three months, so she wins the loving cup.

The only trouble with coal bills is they have to be paid.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

SHALL YOUR CHILDREN HAVE DIPHTHERIA?

Here and there still lives a parent who believes it is a good thing to expose children to certain diseases, such as measles, mumps or whooping cough, in order that the children may "have it over with" while they are young. This isn't criminal ignorance though it should be so considered. Whoever advises or practices such mistreatment should be punished, especially when the child is maimed by or succumbs to the disease.

Time is coming soon if it is not already here when parents must be held accountable for failing to provide due and proper protection to children against the menace of diphtheria. Children in the rural part of the country are more susceptible to diphtheria than children in the towns or cities are, at least children of school age. Among the younger children, not yet old enough to attend school, there is little difference in susceptibility or immunity to diphtheria, according to the available statistics. The school children in towns and cities seem to acquire a certain degree of immunity through more frequent exposure to infection. In large cities the majority of school children are found to be immune—that is, they have no reaction to the Schick test. In the country the majority of the school children react positively to the Schick test, which indicates they are not immune. It might seem strange that the country school children are more vulnerable or more susceptible to diphtheria than the city school children are, if one did not know that immunity (call it "resistance" if you like) is always a specific process due to the specific germ of the disease in question, and never so far removed from the source as to be understood in this manner. It is not so difficult to understand this factor. It is not so difficult to understand this factor. It is not so difficult to understand this factor. It is not so difficult to understand this factor.

Probably more than two million children in New York state have been immunized against diphtheria by means of the toxin antitoxin treatment, and not a single serious accident or untoward result has occurred in all of these cases.

Some physicians have an unwarranted fear of the possible untoward effect of any kind of serum, if such serum should be necessary for a child who has received toxin antitoxin immunization at an earlier age. Dr. William H. Park of New York, perhaps the foremost authority in the country upon such matters assures us that there is nothing to worry about on that score. He finds that injections of antitoxin do unquestionably produce a definite sensitization, but that this sensitization does not make subsequent injections of serum dangerous. The sensitized individual may experience much discomfort from a brief attack of hives and an accompanying feverish state for a day or two, but that is the worst effect to be anticipated when serum is administered long after antitoxin in any case. I am glad to have such assurance from the highest authority about this, for many parents have submitted questions which indicate that they have felt some anxiety concerning the feared danger. Dr. Parks compared the records of 50 children who received a serum from one to three years after toxin antitoxin treatment, with the records of 50 children who received a serum and had never before had any such treatment. The two groups showed practically no differences in their reactions.

Have the little children immunized now, if Schick says they need it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

By L. E. H.

In your opinion is smoking proper for a lady? Are you considered a lady if you do smoke? (B. J. W.)

Answer—I am not up on the etiquette of smoking, but I think smoking or chewing is a proper for a woman as it is for a man. I know that tobacco is injurious to children, persons under 21. I am not certain whether a lady should smoke. Anybody who smokes in a public place, where some nonsmokers may not like the odor, is certainly not courteous. But immediate indulgence in tobacco seems to blunt any little impulse of courtesy a man or woman may have had to begin with.

Dear Rollo:

Here is my contribution:
Spring Song
Sprig, Sprig, glorious Sprig,
I got a cold and everything.
I took off my underthing.
Oh, I was a fool!
I got an awful cold in my bed,
Wed in the rain and got all wet.
I'm writing this poem in my bed,
Oh, I was a fool.

Very truly yours,
Little Mary, Appleton, Wis.

Some noted photographers receive $100 for a sitting—and some tin types at Fairs cost only 10 cents each.

Some men pay $200 for a single suit while others skimp and spend only $18.50 for a double breasted.

In asking you to wear Schmidt's clothes, we have this argument to advance—that at $35 to $50 we can give you the same style (without the expense) as the man who paid $200—and more economy (without the agony) than the man who paid $18.50!

Consider—or better still—come hither.

NO TROUBLE FOR CAR DRIVERS ON STATE HIGHWAYS

Roads in Good Shape for Long Trips Over Memorial Day

State and trunk highways in Outagamie-co are in fair condition, according to A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, who traveled over a number of roads Friday in various parts of the county. Highway patrolmen have been conditioning roads throughout the county during the past week.

There are still places on gravel and other dirt roads where soft spots may be found, but these have been greatly improved during the week. Commissioner Brusewitz reports. Clay roads are hard and smooth and are almost as easy for the motorist as concrete. Barring rain, they will be in first rate condition over the weekend.

OFF TO CHERRYLAND

Cherryland of the Door-co peninsula will be the Mecca of thousands of motorists from Wisconsin and neighboring states during the next two days. There will be no discouraging road conditions to hinder their pilgrimage. All roads in the northeastern part of the state are exceptionally good. Highway 15 to Green Bay is concrete and offers no obstacle in the way of detours while 78 is clear as far as Brussels, where autoists are advised to detour on county trunk C to Cherryland. They will be rewarded for their trip, as a report from Sturgeon Bay says that most trees will be in full bloom.

Those who want to travel the Land of Lakes way are advised by O. C. Rollman, divisional highway engineer, Green Bay, to take 55, rather than 47, to avoid a particularly rough stretch between Neopit and Plover, where the road is under construction. No detour is provided, and the road is passable between these two places, but it will not provide comfortable traveling. Highway 55 is in good condition throughout, and it is fair with exception of the piece mentioned.

GOOD DETOUR

All detours in north and central eastern Wisconsin are reported in good condition, including the ones at Shawano on 16, Winnebago on 35 and 34, New Holstein on 57, and Sturgeon Bay on 75. No authoritative report was received regarding the detour at Waupaca on 54 and 18, but the Wisconsin service map indicates that it is in good condition.

Highway 18 to Stevens Point appears to be in fairly good condition, as does 47 to Bonduel where the motorist may take 16 to Wausau. No obstacles other than an occasional soft spot will be encountered.

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."

When the Battle's Fought and Won
Let us have, in connection with Memorial Day, at least some hours of sober thought as to the meaning of the Day and what we, individually, might get out of it. Ponder, if you will, upon the good traits and the hopes of some of those whom we "have loved long since, and lost awhile." Perhaps it is Mother, or Father, or Brother, or Sister, or Friend.
But in each or any event, there lived in the breast of him or her who has passed on a desire to contribute something toward the welfare of this world.
Each of us desires to project good into the world. That is a normal feeling.
And if we could dwell upon the good that was in the life of those that have passed on, and hope that we might improve some of our weaknesses by emulating their good points, Memorial Day might mean more to us.
It is the constant hope of this Church, of the people in all Churches, to help make the world better and happier—to help people make larger contributions toward the welfare of the world.
Come to this Church tomorrow. Adopt a Church home. That will help you to live a more useful life. That will help you to be remembered in a kindlier way on some future Memorial Day.

POLICE PROBE TWO ROBBERIES

Merchandise Loss at Style Shop Totals $300, Proprietor Reports

Special to Post-Crescent.
New London—Loss of merchandise by burglary at the Style Shop Thursday night amounted to $300, according to Andrew Runnoff, owner. Several tailor made suits, ties, silk shirts, socks and coats were taken in the loot. Entrance was gained through a basement window.

Burglars also entered the Green Bay and Western railroad depot on the same evening. Several places in which money was kept were searched, but nothing was found missing when a check-up was made in the morning. All money had been locked up the night before and was not found by the prowlers. According to strat-agent, P. J. Dornbach, two strange men were loitering about the premises Thursday noon. When asked what they wanted, they responded that they wanted a drink of water. Upon being given this, they departed but only after they had secured some change and several tools from a shed on the railroad property, as was discovered later. An accurate description of the two men was given by depot officials to the police.

The methods used by the youngsters in catching them are questionable, it is said. Several boys have been making a practice of invading residents' private yards and removing dogs from the premises. In some cases, it is alleged by citizens that collars having license tags attached have been removed making it appear as though they were stray mongrels. No dogs are liable to capture unless they are found running amuck from their masters' premises, or unless they are found without license tags attached to them.

STAGE AND SCREEN

"PIGS"

"Pigs," the comic romance of youth which John Golden will present at the Appleton Theatre for one night only, Wednesday, June 9, is another example of clean, wholesome entertainment in the theatre to which this producer has devoted his activities for the past ten years. Like "Lightning," "The First Year," "Three Wise Fools," "Turn to the Right," and the earlier Golden successes, it is built upon foundations of humor and heart interest but it also holds an element of youthful adventure that was not found in any of these.

The principal characters in "Pigs" are a small town boy and girl who are in the throes of what the world knows a "puppy" love. In their scheming to carry their romance to the usual culmination, involving a wedding march, vine-covered bungalow, etc., they resort to a form of blackmail more amusing than dangerous with various strokes of high finance. A group of ailing pigs figure in the plot and their restoration to health finds the young plotters entirely successful in their business project and contended in the bonds of matrimony. Wallace Ford and Nyda Westman enact these roles with a precocity and charm that marked them as genius "finds" in New York last season where "Pigs" ran for forty-one weeks and all this season at the Cort Theater, Chicago. The complete original cast will be seen here.

LANGDON IN LOVE WITH A BILLBOARD GIRL IN NEW FILM

Harry Langdon falls in love with the face of a girl that adorns a billboard as a preliminary to his comical trials and tribulations in "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," which comes next week Monday to the Elite theatre. This is Harry's first feature length comedy under the direction of his recent contract with First National.

After falling in love with the billboard girl Harry sets out to find her. He finds her at last as the daughter of a wealthy shoe manufacturer, who is sponsoring a cross-country walking race. Harry enters the race and wins it. He also wins the girl.

In the course of the race Harry encounters all the misfortunes that a hiker can possibly be afflicted with. He distinguishes himself, however, by getting out of them without permanent injuries.

One of the most exciting scenes in "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," is a cyclone scene, in which an entire town is swept off the map. Cameramen taking this scene had to be lashed to trees and posts in order to prevent being blown away.

"Harry Edwards directed "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp." The supporting cast includes Joan Crawford, Edwards Davis, Alec Francis, Tom Murray and Brooks Benedict.

TOM MEIGHAN HAS GREAT COMEDY SUPPORTING CAST

A battery composed of three of the best known comedians on the stage, furnishes a continuous line of chuckles and laughter in Tom Meighan's latest Paramount production, "The New Klondike."

Charles Winninger, whose most recent Broadway comedy success, was in "No, No, Nanette," enacts the part of a waiter in a Florida restaurant—one that is swamped with hungry hordes who have flocked there because of the real estate boom. This rush of business and the fastidiousness of Meighan, furnished Winninger with a series of screamingly funny situations.

No less funny is Hugh Cameron, another of Broadway's favorite sons. He is a real estate salesman who sets his little selling arguments to music, by having a violinist stand next to him, while he charms the customers.

The last of this trio is Paul Kelly. Paul's comedy business has delighted screen lovers since the days of John Bunny and Flora Finch, in whose pictures, Kelly played juvenile parts. He goes to Florida as "Bing the Bushman," a bush-leaguer who tries to crash the gate of a big time baseball training camp, which is part of the picture's background.

"The New Klondike," which was directed by Lewis Milestone, with Lila Lee playing opposite the star, is now showing at the Fischers Appleton theatre.

"CLASH OF THE WOLVES" WITH RIN-TIN-TIN

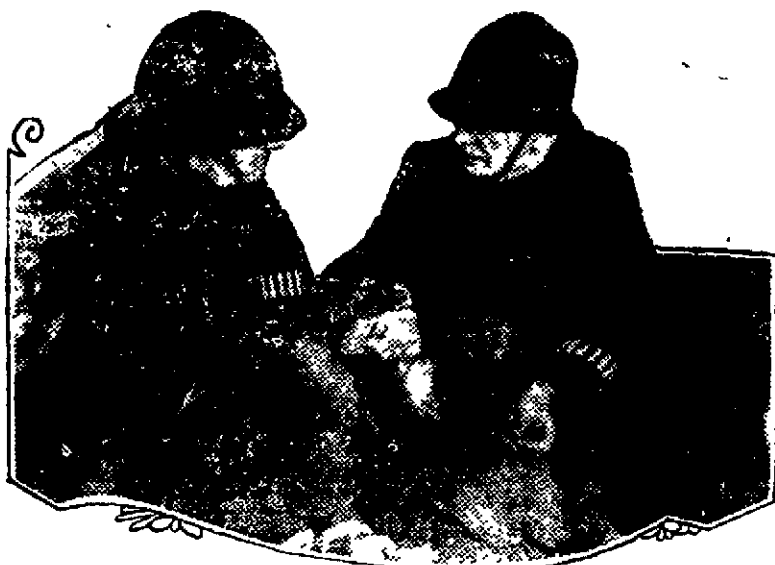

If you like dramatic and exciting screen entertainment, then one picture you must not miss is "The Clash of the Wolves" the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen starring Rin-Tin-Tin at the New Bijou theatre three days starting Monday.

Rinty is a favorite of all dog lovers, and the small minority who find no interest in dog pictures would rapidly change their minds if they saw this canine star in his latest production.

Not only does he think, but we are convinced that Rin-Tin-Tin also has a delightful sense of humor as well, and director Noel Smith is to be congratulated upon getting this dog's personality across to film audiences.

The supporting cast of humans selected for Rin-Tin-Tin includes June Marlowe, Charles Farrell, Heinie Conklin, Pat Hartigan and Will Walling. Miss Marlowe plays May Barlowe, the pretty girl with whom Farrell, a young prospector, and Hartigan, the villain, are in love. Will Walling plays Miss Marlowe's father, who is joined with the other cattlemen in their hunting down of Lobo (Rin-Tin-Tin), leader of the wolves who have attacked their cattle. Farrell's kindness and protection of Lobo makes the wolf his ally and when the young man is almost killed by his rival, it is Lobo who saves him.

The story written by Charles A. Logue, who also adapted it to the screen, is crammed with exciting situations and thrilling moments. In addition to the melodramatic plot, there is the burning romance between Farrell and Miss Marlowe and a most entertaining characterization of the camp cook, by Heinie Conklin.

MICHIGAN FAVORITE IN BIG TEN FINALS

Iowa City, Ia. — (AP) — Displaying great strength in the field events and dashes, the well balanced team of the University of Michigan goes into the finals of the Western Conference outdoor track and field championships Saturday determined to retain the honors won a year ago.

Illinois and Iowa will be fighting to upset the Wolverines, if possible with Wisconsin and Ohio state as long shots to edge into the scoring. The meet, held in the University of law stadium, attracted 315 athletes from the universities in the conference.

Michigan is placed in the position of favorite as a result of the trials Friday, in which thirteen wearers of the Maize and Blue qualified in seven events. Philip Northrup, the Wolverine all-round star qualified in the javelin and running broad jump and also will compete in the pole vault. Northrup smashed the conference record held by himself, in the javelin cast Friday when on his first trial he heaved the spear 265 feet 9 inches breaking his former record made 2 year ago by three and a half inches.

Hester, the Wolverine speedster, is favored to win the 100-yard dash. Hawkins also of Michigan is figured to win the hammer throw.

Wisconsin and Ohio State are good teams, but they appear to lack the number to have them serious contenders.

RADIATOR WORKS MAKES CLEANSER FOR MANY USES

Wollenberg Auto Radiator
Works Manufactures Pop-

The word "universal" in the name Wollenberg Universal Cleaner and Washing Compound, manufactured and sold at the Wollenberg Auto Radiator works, 124 S. Walnut-st., is well chosen, for this product serves as a cleanser for dozens of purposes and is becoming known more and more throughout the country as one of the most efficient and least expensive washing compounds on the market. Mr. Wollenberg receives many letters every week from housewives who have given his compound a trial and after noting the splendid results have declared they will never again use any other cleanser.

Wollenberg Universal Cleaner and Washing Compound is made without the use of caustic, lye or kerosene. For this reason it is an ideal compound for softening hard city water for washing clothes. In this same capacity it is a wonderful powder to soften water in the bath and is guaranteed not to injure or irritate the skin.

Among many uses in which the compound serves as one of the best in the country are the washing of walls, ceilings, wood work, painted walls, ceilings, windows, glassware, milk bottles, bath tubs, tin boxes and silverware. It also is excellent for the removal of stains from fabrics such as fruit stains, blood, iodine, grease and many others. The fact that the compound contains no lye, potash or caustic makes it absolutely non-injurious to fabrics.

One 30 cent package of the Universal Cleaner and Washing Compound will do all the cleaning and washing for the average sized family for several months. Many people go to much needless expense by having five or six cleaning compounds on hand for various purposes when they might have just one package of Universal to do all their "dirty" work. Another reason why the Wollenberg cleanser is inexpensive is that only a small quantity is needed for any one cleaning operation.

OLD TIME ARTISTS MEET IN NEW ROLES

Quiver City, Calif.—(P)—There are three members of the cast and the director of the motion picture production of "Lovey Mary" here who are willing to admit time passes rapidly, but not too fast to reunite old friends. About ten years ago, when Bessie Love was just becoming known in her movies, she played a melodramatic role in which she walked in with a mail chit to ask her father's forgiveness for past sins.

Mary Jane Irvine was the child and today she has a part with Miss Love in the picture. Nineteen years ago, Vivian Ogden played the role of Miss Hazy in the stage presentation of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." The juvenile lead in the company was King Ragrott, who now is directing "Lovey Mary."

When Miss Ogden came on the set, Ragrott remarked: "That costume you're wearing looks very familiar."
"It should," she replied. "It's the same costume I wore when we played together."

No Danger Of Shortage Of Coal For Fuel Next Winter

Babson Park, Mass.—As this is the time of year when careful business men and housewives are considering their coal requirements for next winter, Roger W. Babson was today interviewed regarding the present coal situation and the prospects for next winter. His statement follows:

"At the moment everything is in favor of the buyers of coal. The strike was a complete failure, both sides losing, and there is no fear of a coal strike for at least two years. Hence there is nothing to worry about concerning abnormal conditions which has been the great uncertain factor in connection with coal prices. This means that prices will be regulated this year purely by the old law of supply and demand."

COAL SUPPLY AMPLE
"There need be no fear of a coal shortage, the supply of both bituminous and anthracite is ample for all possible needs. Although now falling off, the production of bituminous coal for the first four months of 1926 was 22,000,000 tons in excess of the same period last year. Anthracite production is not yet back to normal and 1925 production so far is about 50 per cent below the average normal. Conditions are fast becoming adjusted, however, to the new situation and there will be plenty of anthracite coal for everyone this coming winter. The price may not decline at once until the present shortage of anthracite is made up, but ultimately prices for anthracite are inevitable."

"When discussing the subject of demand, we find everything likewise in favor of the consumer. Industrial activity is falling off; stocks of coal are large in view of preparations made for a larger strike; while the general feeling that prices will be lower tends to retard buying. Therefore all indications are that the demand for bituminous coal will be less than during the past twelve months. With a constant supply and less growth in demand, I don't see how any higher prices are possible and lower prices for coal are more likely."

COAL SUBSTITUTES
"The anthracite producers will never fully recover from the recent strike because many people will never again return to the full use of anthracite coal. Some have substituted oil, others are using electricity while many are using bituminous coal or small 'pea' anthracite. Probably the most interesting development is in connection with the increased use of gas, both for cooking and heating. Gas at present varies so in price in different sections of the country, it is impossible to intelligently comment on the same in an interview like this which may be read in almost every county in the United States and Canada. Statistics clearly indicate, however, that gas is to be much more generally used in years to come both for heating and industrial purposes. Surely if a new city could be constructed today, efficient planning would prohibit independent coal mines in each house or factory. The delivery of coal, through the streets, would become as obsolete as independent drinking wells. All homes and factories would be compelled to use gas or electricity exclusively. Of course, such an ideal situation may be generations coming about; but the sole consumers of coal in years to come will be the public utility companies. The typical coal dealer will be a thing of the past."

"This means that the use of coke will constantly increase. First, because the more gas used the more coke produced and secondly, because coke has certain attractive features which are not yet fully realized. For instance, there is no smoke and very little dirt to collect. There are more heat units per ton in coke than in coal although a ton of coke bulks more and requires more storage space. An analysis of bituminous coal shows from 5 per cent to 7 per cent ash, 55 per cent to 60 per cent carbon, 30 per cent volatile gas, 3 per cent water and about 3 per cent sulphur. Now when gas is made, this 30 per cent volatile matter is released and both the water and sulphur are decreased. This gives coke an analysis of about 10 per cent ash, 55 per cent carbon and 1 per cent each of water and sulphur. As we get our heat from the carbon, it is evident that coke is very worth while especially when mixed with coal."

MUCH TO LEARN
"Public utility companies and railroads are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars each year analyzing their coal and studying the most efficient ways to fire their boilers. Yet you and I take any coal that is delivered to us and fire our boiler any way so long as it will burn. As a result, many of us get poor coal and waste a very large proportion of what we do get. This means that we should be careful to buy our coal of an honest dealer. The cheapest coal is often the most expensive. The nation—however—is fast approaching a time when the pennies must again be counted. We cannot much longer live like riotous sailors—spending and wasting as we have the past ten years. Before long the public schools, churches and woman's club will be systematically teaching people how to live economically as well as happily. When this time comes, the buying and use of fuel will be one of the first things taught."

"As signs that such a readjustment of living expenses is inevitable, we see that retail sales are beginning to

STEEL BUSINESS STILL SLOWS UP

Further Curtailment of Operations Coming Unless Business Picks Up

Cleveland, Ohio—Iron Trade Review says: New tonnage booked in May by steelmakers was moderately greater than in April but shipments have kept well beyond the incoming volume so that further curtailment of operations is in sight unless a more decided pickup appears soon. This situation arises because a considerable portion of the present favorable operations of $0 to $5 per cent is due to the spread-out deliveries on business entered some weeks ago which is not being replaced. The spotty elements of the market remain marked both as to territory and product. The sustained gain of new business in Chicago territory stands out against the difficulty of other districts to hold their own. One general fact may be emphasized, however, and that is that new business at this time is substantially ahead of the corresponding period in 1925, ranging from 25 to over 50 per cent, the latter representing the Steel corporation's gain.

Tin plate production and shipments for the first half promise to reach a new high record. Another big week has developed in building steel with 51,555 tons awarded. This is the second largest week of the present year. A proposed elevated motor roadway in New York, plans for which now are before the board of estimate, will require about 50,000 tons.

Plate work continues active especially in the west where 20,000 tons was directed to Chicago mills in the week.

An offsetting duty has been ordered assessed by the treasury department on importations of German pig iron and rolled products where export bounties are paid to the manufacturers under the agreement with the German Raw Steel syndicate. The amount of the additional duty will be determined later. Recently a similar countervailing duty was laid on pig iron from India and this has had the effect of greatly reducing the imports.

Imports of 112,255 tons of iron and steel in April including 55,000 tons of pig iron were the largest since January, 1923. Exports of 194,449 tons also were the largest since January 1924. Iron Trade Review's composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products fell again this week to $38. down 14 cents. The composite is almost identical with the figure one year ago which was $38.04.

QUEEN MARY SPONSORS STYLE OF FINE VEILS

London—(P)—Revival of the wearing of veils by Queen Mary has been quickly followed by her women subjects and this season will see fine transparent veils being worn with the cloche hat.

The kind of veil worn by the Queen herself is lightly patterned and worked on fine net through which her silvery grey hair looks most becoming. One of the fashions is to wear the veil half way down the face.

According to a west-end hair dresser the veils are worn mostly at night. They keep the permanent waved hair tidy and they also feel light and cosy on the head. Hostesses are said to prefer them to silk or lace night caps.

ACTOR SAYS CHIEF AIM IS TO PLEASE PUBLIC

London—(P)—Sir Gerald du Maurier, the celebrated actor son of the author of "Tillie," again has shocked theatrical high brows.

He declared that his ideal part is the one "that is most successful in the eyes of the majority." This is treason to the eye of critics and playwrights who think there is no art in any drama which plays to large crowds and affords genuine amusement to the masses.

"I leave Shakespeare to the other people," du Maurier said. "I just go on being an exponent of the modern 'natural' play to the best of my ability."

Radium's power to kill living tissue was discovered by Henri Becquerel, who carried some radium in his pocket until it burned his chest.

curtail, failures among merchants are more frequent, and commodity prices are slowly but surely declining. As no one likes to buy on a declining market, this situation will ultimately be felt by wholesalers and manufacturers. The stock market is discounting the condition at the present time and this is why the Babson chart has declined from 15 per cent above normal in January to 8 per cent above normal today. On the other hand 8 per cent above normal is nothing to be sad about. It is exceptionally good, only everyone should be careful to make the best of these conditions while the going is good and do nothing to weaken the present situation." ROEMER PRINT SHOP STRESSES SPEED, QUALITY

Pioneer Appleton Firm Well Equipped to Handle Any Kind of Commercial Printing

Prompt service and high class workmanship are the watchwords of the Chris Roemer Estate, printers, one of Appleton's oldest and most reliable print shops. Nine times out of ten when one wants a printing job done in a hurry as most printed material has that essential element of timeliness and if delayed or retarded in any way is apt to lose much of its intrinsic value.

Office forms, stationery and other printed forms are turned out in large quantities at the Roemer printing shop and all of these articles bear the stamp of finished and expert workmanship turned out from an A number 1 printing establishment. Having been in the printing business in Appleton for many years officers of the Roemer concern are well qualified to realize the printing needs of Appleton business concerns.

The Roemer printing shop was started in 1878 in an old frame building occupying part of the site on which the T. M. C. A. stands. During the 47 years that have elapsed since that time the business has grown to such an extent that several changes have been necessary. The present plant on S. Appleton-st has been occupied for three years.

When the business was started one small hand fed printing press was the only piece of equipment in the plant. The concern now has two of the most modern automatic presses, one cylinder press and one Platten press. The cylinder press is used for printing bills and large office forms and the Platten press for small envelopes, cards and letter heads.

RACE WINNERS GET $333,000

Tommy Milton Twice Victorious in Indianapolis Sweepstakes

Indianapolis, (P) Nearly a third of a million dollars has been paid to winners of 500-mile auto-mobile races over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway course in the last ten years.

Tommy Milton, only living driver who ever piloted two winners in the automobile classic, tops the winners. His victories being worth approximately $11,500. Winning the event in 1921, he collected $20,000 for first place, $6,500 in lap prizes and approximately $8,500 from companies whose accessories were used in his car. In 1923 he won $20,000 for first place, $8,500 of the lap money and approximately $8,500 in accessory prizes.

The lap prize plan was instituted in 1920, when automobile firms, manufacturers and citizens donated $20,000 to provide for the payment of $100 to the driver leading at the end of each circuit of the 2 1/2 mile course. Ralph De Palma in 1921 was unable to complete the 500 miles but had a profitable ride, winning more than $10,000 of the lap money.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway is the only racing organization in the world to give prizes to every starter, regardless of where he finishes. The first ten to finish divide $50,000 prize money. The others divide $10,000, the money being apportioned in the manner in which they finish or by the length of time they stayed in the contest.

STEELE DEMANDS RETURN OF TAX OFFSET IN LAW

Appleton Man Tells Tax Committee Merchants Don't Want to Be Tax Collectors

Branding the personal property tax on merchant's stocks as "a sales tax in disguise," J. D. Steele, chairman of Appleton Chamber of Commerce legislative committee, appealed for reinstatement of the personal property offset in the Wisconsin income tax law in a talk before the legislative interim tax committee Thursday at Green Bay. Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce also attended the hearing.

Mr. Steele said merchants whom he represented "objected to acting as tax collectors as the tax he said, could not be absorbed and had to be passed on to customers in higher prices. This was less serious for retailers doing a purely retail business than for wholesalers and jobbers doing an interstate business, he pointed out because the retailers were affected by the state law and were all on the same footing but the wholesalers and manufacturers are forced to compete with firms in states which have no such law.

Wisconsin is one of the eight states which showed a decrease in federal income tax payments for the last quarter. Mr. Steele stated adding that Massachusetts was the only other manufacturing state of importance which showed a decrease and that this state was in a weakened condition due to removal of textile and shoe industries to a more logical field.

PRaises SYSTEM

C. W. Witte tax expert for the committee and Assemblyman Thomas Duncan Milwaukee in responding to the Appleton man's arguments said that Wisconsin's policy of "pay as you go" made taxes high, compared with neighboring states which had heavily bonded themselves for highways, soldiers' bonuses and other purposes but that it was financially sound and resulted in fewer commercial failures than any other state in the union. In discussing expenses of state administration Mr. Witte declared it is no higher in Wisconsin than in Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota.

Senator Max Heck Racine chairman of the interim committee, severely scored critics of state's management of its affairs. "It is not those living outside the state who are the offenders," he said. "It is those people living in the state, who are leaving the borders of Wisconsin because of the tax situation."

Mr. Steele read a report prepared by Dr. D. O. Kinsman, head of the Economics department of Lawrence college and author of the Wisconsin income tax law which declared the repeal of the personal property offset in Wisconsin's income tax law put the state back in the condition which existed prior to 1911.

There were three main parts to the hearing Thursday morning. One was the presentation of the report to the citizens tax committee of Green Bay. This was followed by Mr. Steele's talk and the program was concluded with the proposal of J. J. Colignon, assessor of incomes that assessors be required to pass civil service examination to assure competency in office.

He was following an automobile and tried to find his way by the lights ahead of him he said and had to travel at high speed. THE FASTEST RACERS OF ALL

Whippet racing is getting to be a major sport among the socially prominent folk of Pasadena, Calif. This shows two girls starters holding their dogs waiting for the signal. The whippet is said to be the fastest animal on earth and it takes a good grip to keep them from breaking away and snatching the race ahead of time.

More Fruit, Vegetables Reach Appleton Markets

Fresh white plums are the latest addition to the fruit stores tempting array of edibles. Plums sell at 25 cents a dozen which, according to dealers is a reasonable price. Apricots and gooseberries are not yet on the market in Appleton although fruit stores in larger cities have them for sale. According to local dealers, the price on these luxuries is too high to make handling them profitable and for this reason these fruits do not reach Appleton markets.

Large black California cherries are selling at 40 cents per pound. Pineapples are selling at from two for 25 cents to one for 25 cents according to size and quality. California cantaloupes sell at 2 for 25 cents, 15 cents and 25 cents apiece.

Tomatoes are high at 35 cents per pound, and this price will probably prevail for two or three weeks. Fresh cucumbers sell from 5 to 15 cents apiece according to size. Lettuce is 10 cents a bunch and radishes sell at 10 cents.

Fresh green onions can be purchased for 5 cents a bunch spinach sells at 20 cents a pound and asparagus at 15 cents a bunch.

The market is being flooded with fresh strawberries and they are now selling at 25 cents per quart. Oranges sell from 25 to 60 cents per dozen.

YOUNG MAN WITH FORGERY RECORD ARRESTED HERE

Charge Youth Gave Forged Check in Payment for Use of Car

Clarence Flourner 20, Green Bay, alias Clarence Smith, was arrested Friday noon at an Appleton hotel by George T. Pim, chief of police, for forging the name of a Green Bay man to a check offered in payment here.

Flourner rented an automobile from the auto livery of W. H. Dean Thursday and returned the machine Friday. He offered a cash payment for its use, but the amount was inadequate as the machine had a punctured tire. Flourner then gave a check for $25 on the Farmers National bank of Green Bay and signed the name of Clifford Barclay, underneath that of the Barclay Oil Co., which he printed on the check with a rubber stamp. Dean was told that he could cash the check at an Appleton hotel.

Investigation proved the check worthless. Flourner was arrested by Chief Pim after he returned to the hotel from a visit to Neenan. He was released by Clarence Smith. Upon his release, Flourner will be charged by Green Bay. He is wanted on a forgery charge. Chief Pim states. He has served a term for forgery at the Wisconsin School for boys and was sentenced to a two year term at Green Bay Reformatory. He was arrested on a check for Governor Baum and was released July 1, 1924, according to Chief Pim.

PORKERS SELL WELL AS BUYERS FLOCK TO FAIR

More Than 1,200 Young Pigs Taken by Eager Buyers Saturday Morning

Spring porkers from 6 to 12 weeks old were selling for between $6 and $10 at the monthly stock fair at the stock fair grounds Saturday morning. Between 600 and 800 farmers attended the fair during the morning, it was estimated.

Fourteen wholesale pig buyers from Illinois and Wisconsin were at the grounds and young pigs were at a premium. There was much rivalry between the buyers and prices soared to the highest point for a year. Approximately 1,200 pigs were sold, according to one buyer from Whitewater who had purchased about 300 of the young porkers. One lot of 13 weeks old pigs sold for $15 each. This was the highest price paid during the day.

Many farmers who came to the fair to buy pigs to raise were unable to obtain them because the large buyers absorbed them all.

Horses, bulls, fresh vegetables and dogs were offered for sale. Saddle horses and work horses were on the grounds. Police dogs grown and pups, collies, shepherds, rabbit hounds and fox hounds were on sale.

Stock fairs are held on the last Saturday of each month at the stock fair grounds on N. Walnut-st.

Census Reveals Astonishing Fact

According to the 1920 Census there are 5,549,511 women and girls employed in all trades in the United States. Nearly nine million women would make a vast army.

Napoleon said, "An army travels on its stomach. This woman's army travels on its general health. Probably there is scarcely a woman in it who has not forced herself to work when she was not able. In all sorts of weather and under trying conditions, like good soldiers they stick to their posts. Many women have learned that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to keep them fit to work."

2 HURT WHEN CAR STRIKES CULVERT

Youths Thrown Out of Car Before It Crashes Against Pole

Two young men, 18 or 21 years of age, had a narrow escape from serious injury when the small roadster in which they were driving on Highway 47 toward Appleton about 2 1/2 miles north of the city, struck a culvert and swerved off to one side, ending against a telephone post about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The license number of the car is A 18-673, which was issued to Leslie Kahl, Mount Horeb.

Both young men were thrown from the car and, according to William Buchholz, Appleton grocer, who arrived on the scene shortly after, it was this that saved them from serious injury. One of the boys was unconscious but recovered soon. Passing motorists stopped and helped. Buchholz offered to take the boys to Appleton after they had told him that this was their destination. They asked to be taken to a doctors office, and according to the local man, neither youth was able to tell anything about what had happened. They seemed to be dazed, he said. Their names were not obtained.

ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

NEW YORK

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JOHN MILBURN, partner in the advertising firm of GRAHAM AND MILBURN, built the birth of a baby girl to his wife, FAY, is a big event and a turning point in their marriage.
JOHN is a romantic sort of fellow, whose forte is writing advertising copy. He is impractical. In his family his wife runs the budget, just as in the advertising agency all the financial matters are run by GRAHAM. The firm is small, being just two years old. There is one artist, BRIGGS, and a secretary and stenographer, MISS KNISELY.

John is visiting with Fay in the hospital, discussing their plans for a home of their own, now that they have a baby. In the midst of their discussion a nurse enters with a telegram.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER IV

"It's from your mother, Fay," said John, reading the telegram. "She says, 'So glad it's a girl.' Gosh! She says they're sending a $500 check as the baby's present."

He passed the telegram over to Fay who smiled thoughtfully as she read it.

"That's pretty nice of your parents, Fay. Five hundred dollars!"

"That means," remarked Fay, "that we can make a down payment of $2000 on a house—if we have to."

"You're not planning to touch the baby's money, are you?" asked John in surprise.

"No. We can use our own. It means that we can fall back on this if we have to."

"I don't like that Fay. It's hers. We'll start a college fund with it. We'll want to send her to Wellesley or Smith, or Vassar or some other of those high-toned places. Nothing's going to be too good for her."

"One would think I was a heartless brute, John, the way you talk. Of course I wouldn't think of taking the baby's money. But if the necessity arose we could borrow from her couldn't we? And we'd pay her more interest than the banks would."

John patted her hand. "You win, dear."

Fay said with mock severity: "Did you think I would run the baby's bank?"

He laughed. "I won't argue with you. The doctor says one in your condition shouldn't talk too much."

A nurse appeared bearing a bundle that was the baby. "Somebody's hungry," she announced, and made her way over to the bed. John saw what was happening reddened and walked over to the window.

When the nurse had gone he came back to the bed to gaze at his daughter lying there beside her mother.

"Well, he said smiling, 'I guess my nose is out of joint now. I don't count in the Milburn family any more. Think I'll go home and get some sleep.'"

The next day John feeling better for having made up some of his lost sleep and immersed in a pile of work picked up the telephone to hear the voice of Pat Forbes.

"Well, Gaddy, how's the boy?"

"Fine."

"These this evening?"

"Well, I'd thought of working a pile up these days."

"Forget it and I'll come around and get you after work. We've moved out to the shack in the country for the rest of the summer and there's a swimming party tonight and a beach supper—if you can call a thing a beach supper when there isn't any beach."

"On behalf of my wife I insist for some unknown reason you seem to have registered pretty favorably with her and she told me to be sure to get you. Come on you need the change. I know my lad. I have three of my own."

"Well all right, then. I'll call up Fay."

He changed his mind about calling up. Instead he snatched a half hour during the afternoon and went out to see her. The room was almost filled with flowers. There were several potted blooms and three or four vases full.

"Gosh!" exclaimed John as he entered, "the place looks like a greenhouse."

"Aren't they lovely?" said Fay. "There's something from nearly all of our friends—Pat and Marian Forbes, Dick Menefee, Clara and Margaret Wayne, Noel and Vera Boyd—goodness! I can't remember them all. I told the nurse I'd keep them all here until you saw them and then they could take most of them and put them in some of the other rooms."

"That was thoughtful of you, honey." He bent down and kissed her. Then he told her of Pat Forbes' invitation.

"Surely you're going?" Fay asked. "Well, I didn't know as I ought to. I'm pretty busy and I thought I ought to come out here as much as possible. I've got quite a case on the baby—little rascal."

"You go right ahead. It will do you good. Besides, you can't see the baby every time you come out. It's only when it's feeding time."

"You mean to say I can't demand to see her?"

"Try and see how much good it does."

He made a rueful grimace. "Pretty high-handed I call it."

"Not at all. Babies are not meant for exhibition."

"I finished that Barker and Williams ad today," he told her after a while. "Couldn't do a thing with it yesterday but today, by golly, she's a masterpiece. Even Nat Graham was enthusiastic and you know when he raves over anything it must be pretty good."

"Why do you speak like that about Nat Graham? I always found him pleasant enough."

"Oh, I guess he is pleasant enough Fay. We get along all right. Fact I guess it's an ideal combination. But Nat is so infernally over-enthusiastic that he doesn't find time to be human."

"You could borrow part of that trait from him and profit by it," observed Fay drily.

"Well, Nat's got enough for the two of us," he remarked. "I'll go out to the party tonight then?"

"Yes. Are you going to spend the night there?"

"I suppose so. It's way out in the country. There's quite a few families you know—all friends and neighbors in town—and they clubbed together and bought this piece of land with a little lake on it. You know about it Fay. Guess it's a pretty nice place."

"I've heard Marian speak of some of them," said Fay, "but I've never met any of them. Be sure to tell me what they're like."

Pat Forbes, a short trim figure in summer flannels called at five o'clock. "All ready, John," he greeted Milburn. "Have to shake a leg."

"I'll be ready in a minute. Pat, sit down while I go out and wash up. He motioned the other to a chair and started rolling up his sleeves. Ten minutes later they were climbing into Pat Forbes' touring car.

"You've never been out to the place have you," asked Forbes stepping into the car.

"Nope. Not quite."

"Well, it's nothing to write home about but we find it pretty nice. It's fine for the kids. We're late getting out there this year but the oldest youngster is in school now and we had to wait till the term was out. How does it feel to be a papa?" He crinkled his eyes intent on the traffic.

"Oh not bad. Doctor says I'm bearing up under it pretty well."

"Well, if you need any tips come to me. When you have three of them you can qualify as more or less of an expert. Boy, what I don't know about walking the floor—and measles and whooping cough!"

He broke off suddenly. "Gosh, there's a couple of hot numbers. Wonder if they want a ride. Wait a minute. He slowed the car down and pulled over near the curb. "Open the back door John, they're going our way."

"What—those peroxide blonds, Pat?"

"Oh don't be so particular." He called past John's ear. "Come on girls, hop in!"

The girls, with a swift glance between them, and a giggle, climbed in the back seat. "Gee, this is fine," said one of them. The other added, "I'll say," and John, shuddering, froze into silence.

But Pat, not to be daunted, exchanged smiles and wise cracks with them for the better part of a half hour, then the girls got out profuse with thanks and winking knowingly to Pat behind John's back.

"Don't mention it," Pat called after them. "See you again some time." To John he said after they were once more on their way. "What's the matter—don't you appreciate art?"

"I may not know anything about art," answered John with emphasis. "but I know what I like."

"I like 'em as they come," retorted Pat. "The trouble with you is that the dignity of fatherhood is sitting too heavily on your shoulders."

"You've got me wrong, Pat. I just didn't think they were so hot—that's all."

"Oh well," Pat shrugged, "maybe my taste is bad but I have a lot of fun." He laughed and slowed down while he lit a cigar.

Some time later they drew up in a wooded stretch before a rough little cottage which was almost an exact duplicate of several others scattered nearby. "Well pile in and put on the bathing suits," Pat said as he made a perfunctory inspection of the tires. "I think I can fit you."

Going into the little house he bawled out, "Here's John, Marian."

Where will I find him a bathing suit?"

A plump, red-cheeked woman whose hair was beginning to show an occasional streak of gray, emerged from the kitchen, her face shiny with perspiration. "Hello, John," she said offering her hand. "How's Fay and how's the baby?"

"Both of them fine as can be, Marian."

"I'm just dying to see the little girl. I'll bet she's as cute as she can be. Now just wait a minute and I'll find you a bathing suit. Pat never knows where he puts a thing from one minute to the other."

She departed with a sigh, to return a few minutes later with two suits.

"Here you are. The children have theirs on already," Pat, taking the bathing suits in his hand led the way for John into a bedroom, where they changed.

"You've never met any of the gang out here, have you?" asked Pat and John shook his head.

"Well," continued Pat, tugging at a shoe string, "well, beat it right outside so's you can meet everybody before it gets dark. We've got a buck oven down there and we're going to have hot dogs and salad and marshmallows and I don't know what all truck they don't fix up for these things."

John was surprised to find a much larger "swimming hole" than he had counted on. Indeed it was really quite a respectable little lake, and he murmured his astonishment to Pat.

"Oh, yes," remarked Pat. "It's pretty nice. Be worth a lot of money some day when the town grows out this way a little farther. Look there, John, what do you think of that for a place?" He pointed toward a spring-board, where a young woman, magnificently formed, was poised for a dive.

"That's Nell Orme," Pat continued, and John gazed as if bewitched at the green-clad figure flashed through the air in a perfect jack-knife dive.

"Man!" he exclaimed softly, "she's wonderful, Pat."

"Isn't she? That's Howard Orme—her husband—out there swimming. Funny thing about them," He shook his head slowly. "I think they're having an unhappy go of it. Tell you about it a little later."

The Torque Tube is a sturdy backbone for BUICK quality

It holds the rear axle firmly and staunchly in true alignment, regardless of road inequalities. Twist and wear on the drive shaft and axle are eradicated. Two universal joints are unnecessary. It would be possible, because Buick has the Torque Tube Drive, to drive a Buick from New York to San Francisco with all four springs broken. The Torque Tube also seals the drive shaft from the dirt and wear of the road. Look at the strength of the Buick chassis and make a comparison with competitive motor cars, before you buy your next transportation. You can see Buick's superiority with the naked eye.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN MILBURN, partner in the advertising firm of GRAHAM AND MILBURN, built the birth of a baby girl to his wife, FAY, is a big event and a turning point in their marriage.

JOHN is a romantic sort of fellow, whose forte is writing advertising copy. He is impractical. In his family his wife runs the budget, just as in the advertising agency all the financial matters are run by GRAHAM. The firm is small, being just two years old. There is one artist, BRIGGS, and a secretary and stenographer, MISS KNISELY.

John is visiting with Fay in the hospital, discussing their plans for a home of their own, now that they have a baby. In the midst of their discussion a nurse enters with a telegram.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER IV

"It's from your mother, Fay," said John, reading the telegram. "She says, 'So glad it's a girl.' Gosh! She says they're sending a $500 check as the baby's present."

He passed the telegram over to Fay who smiled thoughtfully as she read it.

"That's pretty nice of your parents, Fay. Five hundred dollars!"

"That means," remarked Fay, "that we can make a down payment of $2000 on a house—if we have to."

"You're not planning to touch the baby's money, are you?" asked John in surprise.

"No. We can use our own. It means that we can fall back on this if we have to."

"I don't like that Fay. It's hers. We'll start a college fund with it. We'll want to send her to Wellesley or Smith, or Vassar or some other of those high-toned places. Nothing's going to be too good for her."

"One would think I was a heartless brute, John, the way you talk. Of course I wouldn't think of taking the baby's money. But if the necessity arose we could borrow from her couldn't we? And we'd pay her more interest than the banks would."

John patted her hand. "You win, dear."

Fay said with mock severity: "Did you think I would run the baby's bank?"

He laughed. "I won't argue with you. The doctor says one in your condition shouldn't talk too much."

A nurse appeared bearing a bundle that was the baby. "Somebody's hungry," she announced, and made her way over to the bed. John saw what was happening reddened and walked over to the window.

When the nurse had gone he came back to the bed to gaze at his daughter lying there beside her mother.

"Well, he said smiling, 'I guess my nose is out of joint now. I don't count in the Milburn family any more. Think I'll go home and get some sleep.'"

The next day John feeling better for having made up some of his lost sleep and immersed in a pile of work picked up the telephone to hear the voice of Pat Forbes.

"Well, Gaddy, how's the boy?"

"Fine."

"These this evening?"

"Well, I'd thought of working a pile up these days."

"Forget it and I'll come around and get you after work. We've moved out to the shack in the country for the rest of the summer and there's a swimming party tonight and a beach supper—if you can call a thing a beach supper when there isn't any beach."

"On behalf of my wife I insist for some unknown reason you seem to have registered pretty favorably with her and she told me to be sure to get you. Come on you need the change. I know my lad. I have three of my own."

"Well all right, then. I'll call up Fay."

He changed his mind about calling up. Instead he snatched a half hour during the afternoon and went out to see her. The room was almost filled with flowers. There were several potted blooms and three or four vases full.

"Gosh!" exclaimed John as he entered, "the place looks like a greenhouse."

"Aren't they lovely?" said Fay. "There's something from nearly all of our friends—Pat and Marian Forbes, Dick Menefee, Clara and Margaret Wayne, Noel and Vera Boyd—goodness! I can't remember them all. I told the nurse I'd keep them all here until you saw them and then they could take most of them and put them in some of the other rooms."

"That was thoughtful of you, honey." He bent down and kissed her. Then he told her of Pat Forbes' invitation.

"Surely you're going?" Fay asked. "Well, I didn't know as I ought to. I'm pretty busy and I thought I ought to come out here as much as possible. I've got quite a case on the baby—little rascal."

"You go right ahead. It will do you good. Besides, you can't see the baby every time you come out. It's only when it's feeding time."

"You mean to say I can't demand to see her?"

"Try and see how much good it does."

He made a rueful grimace. "Pretty high-handed I call it."

"Not at all. Babies are not meant for exhibition."

"I finished that Barker and Williams ad today," he told her after a while. "Couldn't do a thing with it yesterday but today, by golly, she's a masterpiece. Even Nat Graham was enthusiastic and you know when he raves over anything it must be pretty good."

"Why do you speak like that about Nat Graham? I always found him pleasant enough."

"Oh, I guess he is pleasant enough Fay. We get along all right. Fact I guess it's an ideal combination. But Nat is so infernally over-enthusiastic that he doesn't find time to be human."

"You could borrow part of that trait from him and profit by it," observed Fay drily.

"Well, Nat's got enough for the two of us," he remarked. "I'll go out to the party tonight then?"

"Yes. Are you going to spend the night there?"

"I suppose so. It's way out in the country. There's quite a few families you know—all friends and neighbors in town—and they clubbed together and bought this piece of land with a little lake on it. You know about it Fay. Guess it's a pretty nice place."

"I've heard Marian speak of some of them," said Fay, "but I've never met any of them. Be sure to tell me what they're like."

Pat Forbes, a short trim figure in summer flannels called at five o'clock. "All ready, John," he greeted Milburn. "Have to shake a leg."

"I'll be ready in a minute. Pat, sit down while I go out and wash up. He motioned the other to a chair and started rolling up his sleeves. Ten minutes later they were climbing into Pat Forbes' touring car.

"You've never been out to the place have you," asked Forbes stepping into the car.

"Nope. Not quite."

"Well, it's nothing to write home about but we find it pretty nice. It's fine for the kids. We're late getting out there this year but the oldest youngster is in school now and we had to wait till the term was out. How does it feel to be a papa?" He crinkled his eyes intent on the traffic.

"Oh not bad. Doctor says I'm bearing up under it pretty well."

"Well, if you need any tips come to me. When you have three of them you can qualify as more or less of an expert. Boy, what I don't know about walking the floor—and measles and whooping cough!"

He broke off suddenly. "Gosh, there's a couple of hot numbers. Wonder if they want a ride. Wait a minute. He slowed the car down and pulled over near the curb. "Open the back door John, they're going our way."

"What—those peroxide blonds, Pat?"

"Oh don't be so particular." He called past John's ear. "Come on girls, hop in!"

The girls, with a swift glance between them, and a giggle, climbed in the back seat. "Gee, this is fine," said one of them. The other added, "I'll say," and John, shuddering, froze into silence.

But Pat, not to be daunted, exchanged smiles and wise cracks with them for the better part of a half hour, then the girls got out profuse with thanks and winking knowingly to Pat behind John's back.

"Don't mention it," Pat called after them. "See you again some time." To John he said after they were once more on their way. "What's the matter—don't you appreciate art?"

"I may not know anything about art," answered John with emphasis. "but I know what I like."

"I like 'em as they come," retorted Pat. "The trouble with you is that the dignity of fatherhood is sitting too heavily on your shoulders."

"You've got me wrong, Pat. I just didn't think they were so hot—that's all."

"Oh well," Pat shrugged, "maybe my taste is bad but I have a lot of fun." He laughed and slowed down while he lit a cigar.

Some time later they drew up in a wooded stretch before a rough little cottage which was almost an exact duplicate of several others scattered nearby. "Well pile in and put on the bathing suits," Pat said as he made a perfunctory inspection of the tires. "I think I can fit you."

Going into the little house he bawled out, "Here's John, Marian."

The musical event of the month is the issue, on five twelve-inch Red Seal records, of Dvorak's resplendent "From the New World" Symphony, in many respects the first American Symphony, recorded complete by Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra. This work has already, in parts, reached familiarity with the world-at-large, from the record of the slow movement made a couple of years ago by Stokowski; and the setting of it to a Negro spiritual, "Going Home," the chief themes of this movement. This is a composition more easily adapted to reach the ears of the "human average," than most symphonies, from the simple fact that the composer designed it "in the American spirit," and that most of its themes resemble, if they cannot all be traced to, American Indian and Negro sources. It is a large and important work, with a great play of melody and an amazing command of orchestral color. The records are contained in an album accompanied by an explanatory book of 24 pages.

"Leslie, darling," he finally said when he had kissed me again and again and told me how glad he was that I was home, although he hastened to add, "I was really very glad you were not here the day I was burned because you must know that while that confounded sore has never been dangerous, yet it has been damn uncomfortable and I know you would have worried over me much more than you should."

Of course we had all sorts of things to talk about. Little Marquise, it really does a husband and wife a great deal of good to be away from each other for a while. I had to tell Jack all about Ruth and Walter and although I wasn't through with the news I had to tell him Jack must have seen after a while that I wanted to see the children. He rang the bell and asked if Mrs. Atherton had come.

"She has just this minute entered," Mr. Prescott answered the nurse. "Shall I tell her to come up?"

"Oh, Jack," I exclaimed impulsively, "have you been sick enough to have a nurse?" I had not seen her as I came in.

"No, my dear, all this young woman does is to see that the dressings on my leg are properly adjusted. Someone could have come in daily to have done this but my doctor, knowing that I was perfectly well able to pay for such luxuries, insisted that I should keep one on my payroll."

"She is very pretty," I said laughingly. "That may help some."

"Is she?" asked Jack. "I had not noticed. She is most uninteresting to me and I am sure she must hate me, for she has spent her time dressing a burn and listening to me swear while she has been doing it. No, my dear, I have been most of the time, for I assure you I have not been at my best either mentally or physically with a bum leg and the knowledge that I was holding up the works both at the mill and with the motion picture producing company."

The nurse at the junction announced Sally, and Jack said:

"Now, dear, you go and see the children. I wish you were going with you, for ever since I told them you were coming, Jack has been beside himself with joy. Presently your mother will be here. You will want to see her alone while I talk over business with Mrs. Atherton."

TOMORROW: This letter continued.

Adventures Of The Twins

An Adventure Under the Sea

"I don't see the shadow now," said the Stork who had carried the twins and their little fairy friend to the sea-shore in look for the Whiffet's shadow.

With that he made a dive for a shiny green mackerel, with his long beak, and from that on, he didn't pay the slightest attention to them. A stork can't possibly think of two things at once.

Suddenly a large wave splashed over their feet and there on top of it sat a tiny merman.

"Here's a note from Captain Pennywinkle," he said.

The wave rolled out again and the little water fairy went with it.

Nick opened the saw and read: "Dear Twins—I saw you from the bottom of the sea. I can't go to you because I'm the traffic cop down here and if I didn't watch the whales and sharks would run right over everybody. But you can come to me. Bring your little friend in the purple suit along. You'll find three sea-horses waiting for you in the quiet water by the first big rock. Your friend."

"Captain Pennywinkle," The Twins and the Whiffet crawled out onto the great flat rock and looked down.

And there just as the tiny sea policeman had said, were three sea-horses tied to some eel-grass.

"Oh, Oh! I'll shrink more than ever if I see wet again," said the Whiffet. "And if I do I'll burst every seam."

"Oh, no you won't!" said a big hermit crab sticking his head out of a whelk-shell. "I know all about bombazine and it only shrinks twice. All things come to an end some time, even shrinking."

"And whelks," said a lobster seaweed. "You know you ate that whole just so you could have his house."

The Twins and the Whiffet got on the three sea-horses and soon they were quite under the water, traveling along toward the corner of Shell Avenue and Sand Boulevard at the bottom of the sea.

"Oh, look!" cried the little rag-bag fairy. "The sky has fallen into the sea. There are all the stars."

"Oh, ho!" laughed Nick. "They aren't stars. They're fish—starfish."

"Humph!" said the Whiffet. "So they all rode along and along. Suddenly the Whiffet cried out, 'Look there! The garden has fallen into the sea. Look at the flowers!'"

"Oh, ho!" said Nick. "Those are fish, too! Or sort of fish. They're called sea-anemones. My book says so."

"Well, I don't care—there are chestnuts anyway," said the Whiffet. "They're exactly like the prickly things that grew on the chestnut tree outside of the attic where I was born."

"Oh, ho!" said Nick. "You're wrong again, Whiffet. Those are fish, too. Or sort of fish. They're called sea-urchins."

"Well, I think the sea's a queer place," said the Whiffet. "I think they don't have shadows here at all."

But just then it got very dark over their heads. A lot of big fish were swimming right over them. And on the white sand below was a whole flock of fish shadows.

"Oh, dear!" said the rag-bag fairy. "I'm all mixed up."

Final practice for the two big weekend games of the Appleton ball club in which Oshkosh comes here Sunday and the Bazeman travel to Kimberly on Monday, found the Appleton combination working in fine style. The infielders were worked until they could barely move this week and the outfield came in for a hard session. Practice on double plays, stopping attempted steals and "inside" ball occupied most of the week and Manager Baetz says his men are all set for two straight wins. Dais Crowe, star hurler, and one of the most reliable batters in the loop, will occupy a garden berth Sunday where his stickwork will be valuable. Reffe, youthful southpaw, will make his first start on the mound and it looked real proper should make an auspicious opening.

Fond du Lac—In the two cities where the second "opening" day was held last Sunday for the Fox River Valley league, the crowds kept the turnstiles clicking at as merry clip, according to President C. L. PreFontaine of this city.

Because of the success of the plan at the first game of the season, when all women were admitted free of charge at Brandt park, the management of the Appleton ball club has decided that every home game shall be a "ladies day" or in other words that ladies will be admitted free to every game at Brandt park this summer.

The management also states that Monday's game at Kimberly will begin at the regular playing time, 2:30.

C. A. Carver, president of the Oshkosh team, turned the first ball at Green Bay last week and the mayor of the Bay did the receiving.

A crowd, conservatively estimated at 1,000 witnessed the game.

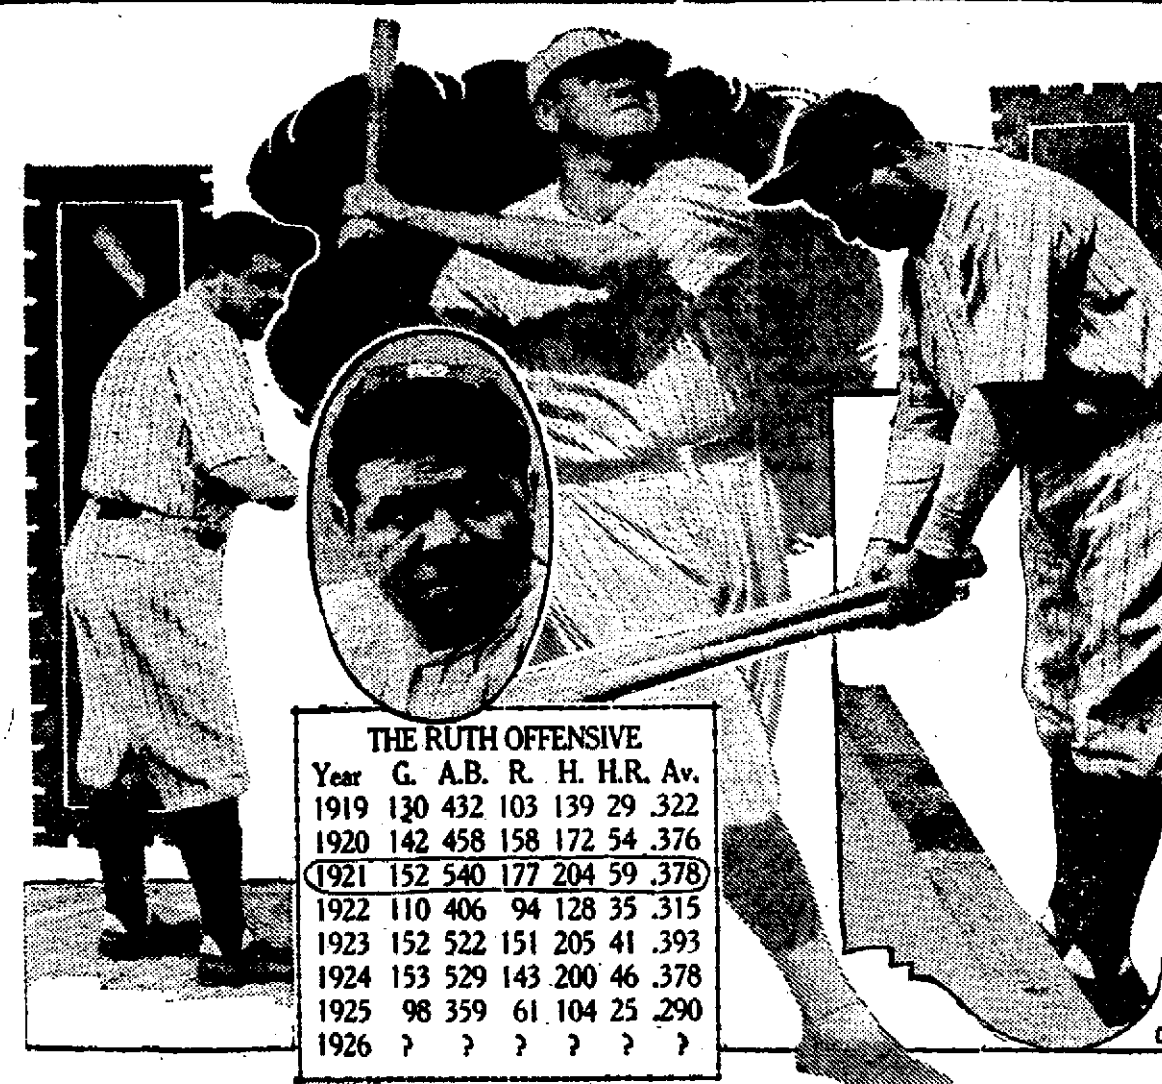

Fond du Lac was entertained at Kimberly and gave the locals a 10 to 3 beating. The Kimberly and Fondy fans jammed the stands, about 1,100 passing through the gates.

Green Bay is playing a fine brand of ball and the fans are supporting the team after having been fed upon alleged semi-pro "stars". Manager Clumman had a fine slabit in La Crosse, who pitched a four-hit and a against two of the hardest swatting clubs in the circuit. Gietzen, the young Oshkosh hurler, acquitted himself well and received good support from his team. Herr and Dobry, the umpires, looked like big league arbiters and gave the foulish sport of squandering money on a ported umpires from Milwaukee. The Fox River Valley league uses home talent umpires as well as players.

HELPFUL HINTS TO GOLFING STARS

ABE MITCHELL—STAND CLOSE WITH IRONS
The ball must be hit firmly and crisply with the masher, with all the iron clubs, and that can't be done easily if we stand too far away. A close stance, not more over the ball, and from that position we are better able to control the club-head. It is power as much as accuracy that is essential in the approach on that very point. When, however, the stance is far from the ball, the swing is seldom true, and, worst of all, the balance of the body is apt to be upset.
There is little body movement in the masher shot, but that will creep in if the stance is far from the ball.
Watching the players at North Foreland recently, I saw many who had this fault, and, as there was a good deal of wind blowing, many approaches never found the greens at all. That is, of course, fatal in a stroke competition; in fact, in any match.
Standing too far away, the club does not come up straight enough in a masher approach. It inclines to be swung around the right leg.

BABE RUTH (BACKGROUND) WHEN HE ESTABLISHED HIS FAMOUS RECORD OF 59 HOME RUNS AND SEVERAL POSES SHOWING HOW HE LOOKS TODAY.

King Of Swat Would Like To Gain 50 Mark 3 Times

BY BILLY EVANS
Babe Ruth would like to make 50 home runs this year. Even with a less lively ball in use, Babe is an optimistic cuss and believes there is a chance. Ruth has set his goal at 50 because he would like to equal or better that mark for the third time in his career. "Making a half century of four-sackers this year would just about give me the win, place and show honors in the home-run derby for this time," is the way Babe explains it. In 1921 Ruth set his record-breaking mark of 59 homers. The year previous set smacked out 54. Three two marks make the win and place positions pretty safe and he figures 50 this year would hold down the show honors for some time. In 1924 Ruth made 46 circuit drives, four more than the best mark ever made in the National League by Rogers Hornsby in 1922. However, the Babe seeks to hit the 50-mark for a third time. This is rather unfair, since Ruth is a remarkable ball player in all departments. For a big fellow he is fast, covers lots of ground and, next to Tris Speaker, is the best left-handed throwing outfielder in the American League. And, what is more, Ruth has team success in mind always, rather than individual glory. This year he is more inclined that way than ever. That fact surely will tend to make his effort to reach the 50-mark in home runs all the more difficult. Instead of swinging his head off every time he comes to bat, Ruth is unsentimental the opposition by occasionally laying down a perfect bunt, trying to hit through the spots opened up by the peculiar manner in which most infields play for him. And every now and then he punches at the ball in an effort to drive it just over the infield.

RUBE SCHIPPER FACES SUSPENSION FROM RING

Rhinelanders—Billy Lamont of Milwaukee and Al DeRose of St. Paul, bantams, fought a fast ten round draw here Thursday night. Hank King of Rhineland won the decision in a six round bout with Billy McElwaine, Eau Claire welter.
Rube Schipper of Oshkosh and his manager, W. H. McGowan, may face ers Hornsby in 1922. However, the Babe seeks to hit the 50-mark for a third time. This is rather unfair, since Ruth is a remarkable ball player in all departments. For a big fellow he is fast, covers lots of ground and, next to Tris Speaker, is the best left-handed throwing outfielder in the American League. And, what is more, Ruth has team success in mind always, rather than individual glory. This year he is more inclined that way than ever. That fact surely will tend to make his effort to reach the 50-mark in home runs all the more difficult. And every now and then he punches at the ball in an effort to drive it just over the infield.

Ruth, in the first six weeks of play in the 1926 campaign, has kept pace with his schedule of 50 homers for the season. As a matter of fact, he was ahead of his 1921 mark for the same time, the year he made his record of 59. Regardless of whether Ruth hits his goal of 50, if he can continue his early season form he will have had a great year and made good with a vengeance his comeback threat.

BADGER NETTERS IN CONFERENCE FINALS

Chicago—(AP)—Western conference tennis champions in both singles and doubles will be determined Saturday at the University of Chicago court, with Illinois, Wisconsin and Chicago in competition. Neither of the finalist teams in the doubles had great difficulty in eliminating the runners-up in their bracket Friday O'Connell and Schoell of Illinois, winning from Iowa 6-0, 7-5 and Boldenweck and Durand of the Badgers defeating Minnesota 6-0, 6-4. O'Connell, Schoell, Boldenweck and Shapinski, the latter of Chicago, met in the semi-finals of the singles this morning with the finals scheduled to precede the doubles finals this afternoon. Shapinski brought a minor upset Friday when he eliminated Nick Baum of Michigan in straight sets in the fourth round of play.

PETE DEPAOLO ENTERS AUTO RACE SATURDAY

Indianapolis Ind.—(AP)—Pete DePaolo, American automobile racing champion in 1925 hoped to qualify Saturday for the annual 500-mile race to be held next Monday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Nineteen drivers already have passed the test of averaging 85 miles or better. DePaolo has been kept off the track because work on his new car has progressed slowly. Bob McDonough who will pilot one of Tommy Milton's entries also is expected to qualify Saturday along with five or six others.
Suspension for Schipper's failure to appear against Frank Mox of Iron Mountain in a scheduled six round bout.

KIMBERLY ADDS NEW PLAYERS FOR APPLETON BATTLE

K-C Ball Club Determined to Break into Win Column in Two Weekend Tilts

Kimberly—If the dope runs true to form, Kimberly will have some new faces in the lineup Sunday when they meet Larson's swatters from Neenah, as well as having the added strength for the Appleton engagement when Manager Baetz's squad will attempt to break into the win column at the expense of the Kimberly team. Baetz has a hard hitting and smooth working team, as was shown when it dropped the first battle to the Green Bay squad, when the Bayliss knocked one over the fence in the first inning with one on, thus clinching the game. The Kimberly team has been out for practice regularly, and with two games already played should have a slight edge on the Neenah and Appleton teams who have only played one game apiece, and that two weeks ago. Vanderloop and Poca will probably do the twirling for Kimberly in the two battles, with Butch Thoin, Len Smith and Marty Lammer to fall back. Two more sets of bleachers have been set up in Kimberly park to take care of the crowd. Last Sunday, with about 800, the stands were practically filled. The Kimberly band will be out for the games on both Sunday and Monday, and a special section of the grandstand has been reserved for them. Admission to the games at Kimberly will be thirty-five cents for general admission. Ladies being admitted free. All grandstand seats will be fifteen cents. This is a change from the other games, when all admissions were fifty cents with children and ladies free. This has been done, because the management has found that there are a number of people who would rather frequent the bleachers or side lines than remain in the grandstand seats. The game on Sunday will begin at 3:30 sharp, while the game on Monday will start on scheduled time, the umpire ringing the gong at 2:30. The Sunday game will be postponed one half an hour to allow for the conclusion of the American Legion program which is scheduled for Sunday until 3 o'clock.

The Twilight League softball game between the American Legion and the Mann Monmouth, scheduled for Monday afternoon at Jones park, has been postponed until Tuesday afternoon and will be played at Interlakes park. Manager Les Smith of the Legion crew said Saturday, Jones park will be used for the opening game of the Lark League Tuesday afternoon. The game will start at 5:15, the regular time.

TWO LAWRENCE STARS PLACE IN MIDWEST CONTEST

Hipke 2nd in Shot Put and Doug Hyde 3rd in Hurdles; Meyers of Ripon Stars

Two of the five Lawrence "college" trackmen who competed in the Midwest Conference track and field meet held at Mount Vernon, Iowa on Friday, placed in the score column, giving the Blues five points and eighth place in the meet. Beloit college finished ninth and last with one point. Carleton college won the meet with 36½ points and Ripon finished well up in the running.
Capt-elect Robert Hipke, New Holstein, took a second place in the shotput and Doug Hyde, Anderson, garnered a third in the 220-yard low hurdles in which the conference record was broken twice. In the heats Mann of Knox made the distance in 24.9 to break the mark held by Nansinger of Carleton of 25.8. In the finals Burns of Carleton won the event by breaking the mark again traveling the sticks in 24.6. Other Blue competitors were Don Hyde in the 440 and low hurdles; Stair in the 100 and McConnell in the high and broad jump. In the shot put the mark was well under Hipke's state record.
Five Midwest records were broken, two of which went to a Wisconsin collegian when Meyer of Ripon, state dash champion, took six firsts in both the century and furlong dashes to break marks set by Nesbit of Beloit, who was not competing due to a leg injury. Nesbit was undefeated Midwest champ and a real battle would be in store should he and Meyer meet. Meyer traveled the 100 in 9.9 seconds to break a mark of 10 fl and the 220 in 21.6 to break a mark of 22.

Dallenger of Coe broke the high hurdle mark held by Thompson, Beloit star, when he made the distance in 15.8 compared to 16 fl. In the low hurdles, Burns of Carleton broke the mark. In the high jump Poles, Knox; McIntosh, Monmouth; Dallenger, Coe; Norton, Carleton, tied for the first honor at 5 feet, breaking a mark held by McGill of Beloit at 4 feet 9 inches. It was the fourth mark set by a Beloit man to go by the boards in the meet. McConnell was in this event but was unable to make 6 feet.

Final scoring was Carleton, 36½; Knox, 33½; Carleton, 27 2-3; Monmouth, 24; Beloit, 23; Ripon, 17; Hamline, 16; Lawrence, 5; Beloit, 1. Knox gave Carleton quite a battle for top honors. Meyer of Ripon with his two firsts which counted 10 of Ripon's Red's 17 points was high individual point man of the day. His work enabled the Deehlingmen to place just ¾ of a point behind Coe. Anderson scored Beloit's only point with fourth place in the discus. Schneider of Ripon, state disc champ, took first in his event.

Slugging Yanks Continue To Set Batting Pace For Both Major Ball Circuits

Joe Dugan Returns to Stride to Lead A. L. Batsmen With Mark of .414

Chicago—(AP)—The hitting is slowly but nevertheless getting heavier as major league teams go into the latter half of the baseball season's second month.
While the number of players' way out in front with fat batting averages is decreasing as the season grows older, the team hitting is on the upgrade and the clubs generally are slugging well beyond their rather discouraging efforts at the start of the pennant chases.
The Yankees, setting the slugging pace for both the American and National leagues, are the exception, recent difficulty in collecting bingles having dropped the Yanks' rating a few points to .321. The White Sox have reached a .299 stride and Washington which opened the American schedule with hitting of the 220 variety, has climbed to third place in the standing with a club average of .334.
In the National, the Chicago Cubs have slugged their way to the top of the team hitting averages with a rating of .297, three points above that of a week ago. The Reds are hitting .286, New York has a percentage of .282 and the world champion Pirates, who finished the first week of the season with an average of only .187, have attained fourth place in the column by hitting .277.
Hitting during the past two weeks has indicated that the supposedly "slow" ball in use this year is good for distance if it is hit enough. There have been an unusually large number of doubles and home runs, almost incredible total of twenty-one having been recorded by circuit drive sluggers last Tuesday.

Veterans are gradually displacing the comparatively unrecognized hitters who topped the batting lists at the start of the season. Although Wambagnas of Philadelphia has hit .417 in 15 games, the regular players in the American are led by Joe Dugan's .414, Meusel and Ruth adding to the Yankee representation with averages of .395 and .379 respectively. Bennett of the Browns has passed The Babe with an average of .390.
Bubbles Hargrave, Cincinnati backstop, has jumped into prominence by running his percentage up to .432 in 17 games. Southworth's .406 average when he dropped out of the Giant lineup continuing to rule second, Wayland Dean of the Phillies and Lucas of the Reds have set a mark for pitchers by slugging at, in the order name, .391 and .367 clips. Bressler of the Reds really heads the regulars with .355.
Ruth has increased his lead in the home run race, the large number of circuit blows having been too widely distributed to put any one player very near the champion's mark of 16 at the end of the season's first six weeks.

Bases apparently aren't being lifted so easily as the catchers find their arms. St. Louis of the Senators having equalled the 10 piffing sacks of Cuyler, the Pirate failed to increase his total during the past week.
The ability of the Yankees to stay well ahead in the American is due in no small part to the club's pitching, Pennock, Hoyt and Shocker having the best pitching records in the circuit. They have been credited 21 out of the 30 winning starts in the first six weeks, Pennock setting the pace with eight victories and one losing game. Rehm and Keen of the Cardinals have the best hurling records to date in the National, with seven winning starts apiece. "Lefty" Grove of the Athletics has the strike out record for the season, with a total of 84.
